(2) Notwithstanding such repeal, anything done or any action taken under the said Ordinance shall be deemed to have been done ⁵ or taken under this Act as if this Act had commenced on the 6th day of January, 1965.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS

The main object of the Bill is to replace the Income-tax (Amendment) Ordinance, 1965 (1 of 1965). The Ordinance was promulgated on the 6th January, 1965 and contains provisions which were found to be immediately necessary, relating to searches and seizures, voluntary disclosures and validation of certain searches made under section 132 of the Income-tax Act, 1961. Opportunity has also been taken to include in the Bill certain other amendments which are incidental or supplemental to the above matters.

The more important provisions of the Bill are as follows:—

The powers of search and seizure are being enlarged, enabling seizure of any money, bullion, jewellery or other valuable article or thing which represents either wholly or partly undisclosed income or property. The Income-tax Officer is being empowered to retain such of the assets seized as he may consider necessary to satisfy the liability estimated by him in respect of the undisclosed income and also any existing liability under the Direct Taxes Acts in respect of which the person concerned is in default or is deemed to be in default. The balance, if any, will be returned forthwith. The retained assets will be applied for the discharge of such existing liabilities and of the liability determined on regular assessment relating to the undisclosed income, in respect of which the assessee is in default or is deemed to be in default. It is also clarified that proceedings in the course of which search warrants can be issued include future proceedings also.

Further, the Commissioner is being empowered to reduce or waive the amount of minimum penalty imposable in the case of voluntary disclosure. A person in whose case the penalty is so waived or reduced will not be prosecuted in relation to the relevant assessments.

The notes on clauses explain the various provisions of the Bill.

NEW DELHI;

The 13th February, 1965.

Notes on clauses

Clause 2 of the Bill substitutes a new section for the existing section 132 and also adds a new section 132A.

The new section 132 includes certain provisions in addition to the existing ones.

The new sub-section (1) provides another circumstance, in addition to the existing ones, in which search or seizure may be authorised, viz., where any money, bullion, jewellery or other valuable article or thing which represents either wholly or partly undisclosed income or property is believed to exist. The power conferred on the Commissioner under sub-section (1) is also being conferred on the Director of Inspection and further the authorisation by the Director of Inspection or the Commissioner can also be to a Deputy Director of Inspection or an Assistant Director of Inspection. For the purpose of search and seizure the authorised officer may break open the lock of any door or locker, safe, almirah or any other receptacle where the keys thereof are not available.

The new sub-section (2) empowers, for the purposes of search and seizure, the authorised officer to requisition the services of any police officer or of any officer of the Central Government, or of both, to assist him.

Where it is not practicable to seize any asset found during the search, the new sub-section (3) empowers the authorised officer to serve an order on the person concerned not to remove or part with or otherwise deal with it except with his previous permission.

According to the new sub-section (4), during the course of search and seizure, the authorised officer may examine on oath any person who is found to be in possession of books of account or documents and assets like money, bullion and jewellery. This provision is intended to enable the Income-tax Officer to ascertain the true facts before an assessee can make up an explanation as a result of after-thought. The statement made during such examination may thereafter be used in evidence in any proceedings under the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922 or the Income-tax Act, 1961.

The new sub-section (5) provides that where any asset is seized, then within 90 days of such seizure and with the previous approval of the Commissioner, the Income-tax Officer shall pass an order estimating in a summary manner the undisclosed income (including the income from the undisclosed property), calculating the amount of tax on the same in accordance with the provisions of the law and specifying the amount that will be required to satisfy any existing liability under the direct taxes enactments in respect of which the person is in default or is deemed to be in default. In computing the period of 90 days, any period during which any proceeding in this regard is stayed by an order or injunction of any court, shall be excluded (vide Explanation 1 to the new section 132). Before making such an order the Income-tax Officer has to afford a reasonable opportunity to the person concerned for being heard and make such enquiry as may be prescribed. The Income-tax Officer shall retain such assets or part thereof which are, in his opinion, sufficient to satisfy the aggregate of the amount of liability determined in respect of the undisclosed income and the existing liabilities in respect of which the assessee is in default or is deemed to be in default. The remaining portion of the assets, if any, shall be forthwith released to the person from whose custody they were seized.

The aforesaid sub-section (5) further provides that if, after considering the materials available with him, the Income-tax Officer is of the opinion that it is not possible to ascertain which particular previous year or years such undisclosed income or any part of such income relates to, he may calculate the tax on the same as if it were the total income chargeable to tax at the rates in force in the financial year in which the assets were seized.

Where, however, a person has paid or made satisfactory arrangements for payment of the amount of liability relating to the undisclosed income estimated by the Income-tax Officer and the existing liabilities aforesaid, Income-tax Officer may release such assets as he may deem fit. For this purpose, the Income-tax Officer has to obtain the previous approval of the Commissioner.

The new sub-section (6) provides that the assets retained under the provisions of sub-section (5) shall be applied in accordance with the provisions of the new section 132A.

The new sub-section (7) is self-explanatory.

The existing sub-sections (2), (3) and (4) have been re-numbered (8), (9) and (10) respectively with certain verbal changes consequential to the provisions of the new sub-section (1).

The new sub-section (11) gives a right to the person objecting to an order made under sub-section (5) to make an application to such authority as may be notified in this behalf by the Central Government. Such an application has to be made within thirty days of the order applied against.

The existing sub-section (5) has been re-numbered (12) with consequential changes made due to the insertion of the new sub-section (11).

The existing sub-section (6) has been re-numbered (13) with certain verbal changes.

The existing sub-section (7) has been re-numbered (14) and been further amended to clarify that the rules made by the Board in relation to any search or seizure may, inter alia, include the procedure for obtaining ingress into the building or place to be searched where free ingress thereto is not available and for ensuring safe custody of any books of account or other documents or assets seized.

The Explanation 2 to the new section 132 clarifies that the word "proceeding" means any "proceeding" in respect of any year, whether under the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922 or the Income-tax Act, 1961, which may be either pending or may have been completed on or before the date of search or seizure and includes also all proceedings under the Income-tax Act, 1961 which may be commenced after such date in respect of any year.

The new section 132A makes provision relating to the application of assets retained under section 132. These assets may be applied to the discharge of the existing liabilities in respect of which the assessee is in default or is deemed to be in default as well as the liability in respect of the regular assessment or reassessment for the assessment years relevant to the previous years to which the income relates and in respect of which the assessee is in default or is deemed to be in default. If money has been seized and retained such money may be applied for the purpose of discharge of both the above liabilities. If the money seized is not sufficient for the discharge of the above liabilities, the assets other than money which have been retained shall be deemed to be under restraint as if such restraint was effected by the Income-tax Officer under section 226(5). The Income-tax Officer can sell such assets as he may find it necessary for the purpose of recovery of the aforesaid liabilities. The sale shall be effected in the manner laid down in the Third Schedule.

If any assets or proceeds thereof remain after the aforesaid liabilities have been discharged, they will be forthwith paid or made over to the person from whose custody they were seized.

The mode of recovery prescribed by section 132A shall not preclude the recovery of the amount of the liability by any other mode laid down in the Act.

Sub-section (4) of the new sub-section 132A provides for interest to be paid by the Central Government as compensation for retention of money seized and proceeds of assets sold in excess of the total tax liabilities against which they are applied. Where the aggregate of the amount retained under section 132 and the proceeds, if any, of the assets sold for the purpose of recovery of the existing liabilities referred to in that section exceed the aggregate of the existing liabilities in default and the liability determined on regular assessment, the Central Government shall pay simple interest at the rate of 5 per cent. per annum on the amount of such excess. The interest shall run from the date immediately following the end of six months from the date of the order under section 132 (5) to the date of regular assessment or reassessment relating to the undisclosed income, or, as the case may be, to the date of the last of such assessments or reassessments. No interest will be payable in relation to assets, other than money, which are not sold by the Income-tax Officer.

With a view to encourage voluntary disclosures of undisclosed income, clause 3 inserts a new sub-section (4A) in section 271 which empowers the Commissioner, in his discretion, to reduce or waive the amount of minimum penalty imposable under section 271 (1) (iii) in the case of a person who has voluntarily and in good faith made full and true disclosure of his concealed income, before detection of the same by the Income-tax Officer and, in addition, has co-operated in any enquiry relating to the assessment of the concealed income and has either paid or made satisfactory arrangements for payment of any tax or interest which may become payable in respect of the income concealed. Where the amount of minimum penalty imposable under section 271(1) (iii) in respect of all assessment years involved exceeds Rs. 50,000, the previous approval of the Board has to be obtained by the Commissioner.

In order to ensure that an order under sub-section (3) of section 132 may not be contravened, clause 4 inserts a new section 275A which provides for punishment for contravention of such order.

Clause 5 amends sub-section (1) and inserts two new sub-sections, namely, (1A) and (3) in section 279.

The amendment to sub-section (1) is consequential to the insertion of new section 275A.

Sub-section (1A) provides that a person in whose case the penalty imposable under section 271 (1) (iii) has been reduced or waived by the Commissioner under sub-section (4A) of that section, shall not be liable to be prosecuted under section 277 in relation to the assessment for the assessment year in respect of which the penalty imposable has been reduced or waived.

Sub-section (3) provides that where any prosecution has been started against any person, any statement made or account or other document produced by him before any of the Income-tax authorities of the rank of Income-tax Officer and above shall not be inadmissible as evidence for the purpose of the prosecution merely on the ground that such statement was made or such account or other document was produced in the belief that the penalty imposable would be reduced or waived under sub-section 271(4A) or that the particular offence would be compounded.

Clause 6 validates certain searches purported to have been made in pursuance of section 132(1).

The clause is self-explanatory.

FINANCIAL MEMORANDUM

Sub-section (4) of the new section 132A inserted by clause 2 of the Bill provides for interest to be paid by the Central Government in certain circumstances. The exact amount of interest so payable cannot be foreseen at the present, but it is expected that it would be of the order of Rs. 25,000.

The provisions of section 132 relating to seizure are also expected to involve some additional expenditure such as expenditure on arrangements for safe custody of assets seized. The amount of such expenditure cannot be foreseen at present with any degree of precision. It is expected, however, that such expenditure will be of the order of Rs. 1,00,000.

MEMORANDUM REGARDING DELEGATED LEGISLATION

Clause 2 of the Bill would enable the Board to frame rules regarding the enquiry to be made for purposes of section 132(5). The clause also clarifies that the rules to be made by the Board in relation to any search or seizure made under section 132(1) include rules to provide the procedure to be followed in a search or seizure for obtaining ingress into a building or place where ingress thereto is not available, and for ensuring safe custody of any books of account, other documents or assets seized.

The matters in respect of which rules will be made are matters of procedure or detail.

The delegation of legislative powers is, therefore, of a normal character.

S. L. SHAKDHER,
Secretary.
